At Campus Philly, February is the Coolest Month

It's practically a February Frenzy. In the coming weeks, Campus Philly makes midwinter shine with a host of events designed to draw us all out of our cocoons. Check out this trio: On February 11, Campus Philly partners with Mobile Monday Mid-Atlantic; we hold our Inclusive Leadership Conference on February 16; and we'll close the month with a week-long Online Internship Fair. Read on for details.

It's lightning fast: Mobile Monday, Campus Philly style. On February 11, 2013, join us at Quorum in the University City Science Center from 6 to 8 pm for Lightning Lessons, a student-focused 360 degree view of the job opportunities within the city's tech and mobile industries. It's free. Job seekers will hear from entrepreneurs, venture capitalists, attorneys and marketing experts who take the stage for rapid fire presentations. A networking reception will follow where students can connect one on one with local professionals. For more information, visit campusphilly.org/lightninglessons

Keep calm and lead on: The Inclusive Leadership Conference, a collaboration with Temple University, is an all-day conference that will take place at the Howard Gittis Student Center on Temple's campus. Open to all Philadelphia undergrads, the low-cost conference features nationally recognized leadership educator Daphne R. Wells. The focus is on skills enhancement, leadership and social change. For more info, visit campusphilly.org/leadership2013

Everyone in the (talent) pool! From February 25 to March 1, check out Campus Philly's Online Internship Fair. Sponsored by off campus student housing company Aimco, undergrads will have an opportunity to go to the fair without ever leaving the comfort of the dorm. There will be hundreds of job opportunities for spring and summer internships at exciting companies looking to hire local talent. A good internship can be the first step to a solid job offer upon graduation. It's the most popular career fair of the year! Visit campusphilly.org/careers for details.

And that's not all. Campus Philly has a great lineup of events throughout 2013, including our annual My Philly Summer series. Stay tuned!
